Science Per Aquam

VISION

Too often «Salus Per Aquam» remains a national and international empirical rather than evidence based practice.

Too often there is no significant synergy among the different medical specialties and the possible enhancement of the already demonstrated benefits of the thermal aquatic environment.

«Science Per Aquam» initiative follows the «vision» of a scientific approach to thermalism, focusing on a multi-specialty approach, hubbing around the Family Medicine and the public health awareness.

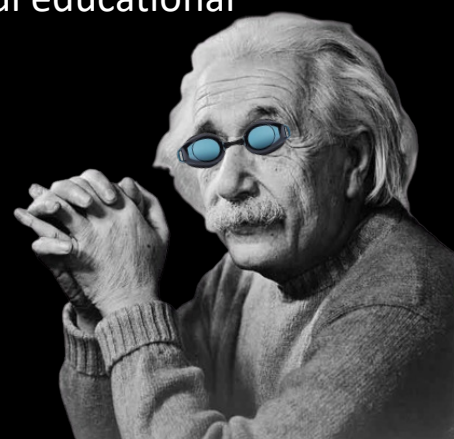

MISSION

Science Per Aquam vision is developed by a theoretical and practical event in person at the Terme di Cervia, offering a model for a national and international collaboration among different medical specialties.

Main focus of the first event will be the venous and lymphatic pathology, since involving more than half of the population, moreover touching topics of vast interest such as venous thrombo-embolism and lymphedema, defined by the World Health Organization as «leading cause of preventable death» and «hidden epidemic».

Equally important topic will be the gender equality, expressed as pelvic venous disorder, also known as «the forgotten disease»,

Theoretical and practical sessions, including maximum experts from all continents, will provide the opportunity of a meaningful educational and social significance.
